This summer marks the 30th anniversary of Mendocino Folklore Camp. The camp is located in the beautiful Mendocino Woodlands in Northern California, in the heart of a redwood forest. For relaxing, there are miles of hiking trails, a nature center, a meadow for sunning and volleyball, and a refreshing swimming hole.

Each day is marked by a special theme and gourmet meals emphasizing different folklore traditions.

In addition to the teachers this year (Barry Glass-Croatia, Jaap Leegwater-Bulgaria, Jacek and Bozena Marek-Poland, and Tony Parkes-New England Square and Contra), live music will be provided by Barbara McOwen (fiddle), Rebecca Ashenden (accordion), Chuck Corman (bass, guitar), Janette Duncan (fiddle), David Skidmore (clarinet, tapan), and Don Sparks (accordion). Billy Burke will lead a special workshop in teaching folk dance in the schools and Bev Mann and Heidi Barthelemy will lead arts and crafts.

INTERNATIONAL FOLK DANCE FESTIVAL May 23, 1992

Los Angeles' original multi-awarded International Folk Dance Festival is throwing a gala 45th birthday party Saturday evening, May 23, 1992, with a guest list drawn from a "who's who" of the lively arts... "Sandman" Sims, living legend from the golden age of tap, Shasha and Marina Kalinin from the renowned Moiseyev, with their own Russian-Gypsy Dance Theatre; ethno-percussionist Nyoman Wenten recreating the spectacular "Kecak" monkey ritual of Bali with gamelan orchestra and fifty squat-dancing chanters; globe trotting International Children's Chorus doing American clogs and songs; and, as narrator, distinguished actor, Edward Asner.

Gathering together hundreds of colorfully costumed dancers, singers, and ethnic musicians, founder/director Irwin Parnes has created a celebration of folk roots creativity: from frenetic Carnival dances by the Balagan Brazilians to a "Gigi" inspired Can Can by the Beverly Hills Cotillion; from the spectacular mid-air acrobatics of the Makarian Armenians to the sinuous midriff gyrations of the Magana Baptiste Egyptian Dance troupe; from farmers' harvest time high-jinks by Dom Kim's brilliant Korean Classical Dance Company to fishermen's homecoming high times by the headstrong Fil Am Dancers, Choir and Rondalla Orchestra. As a special added attraction, the Tokuyae Hanayagi Japanese Dancers will be performing.

Reflecting a darker side to the 500th year of Columbus' voyage, the Tonanzin Mexican dancers and drummers will recreate rituals from the heyday of the lost Aztec civilization. The Keshet Chaim Israelis will recall a Judeo-Ladino culture which flourished in Spain before the Expulsion.

Africa will be represented by the Djimbe Koumpo Dancing Drummers; Scotland by the Strathleven Dancers and Pipers; and Poland by the Krakusy Dancers in a Chopinesque "Polonaise Brillante", with folk music introductions by the University of California, Santa Singers, directed by Carl Zytowsky.

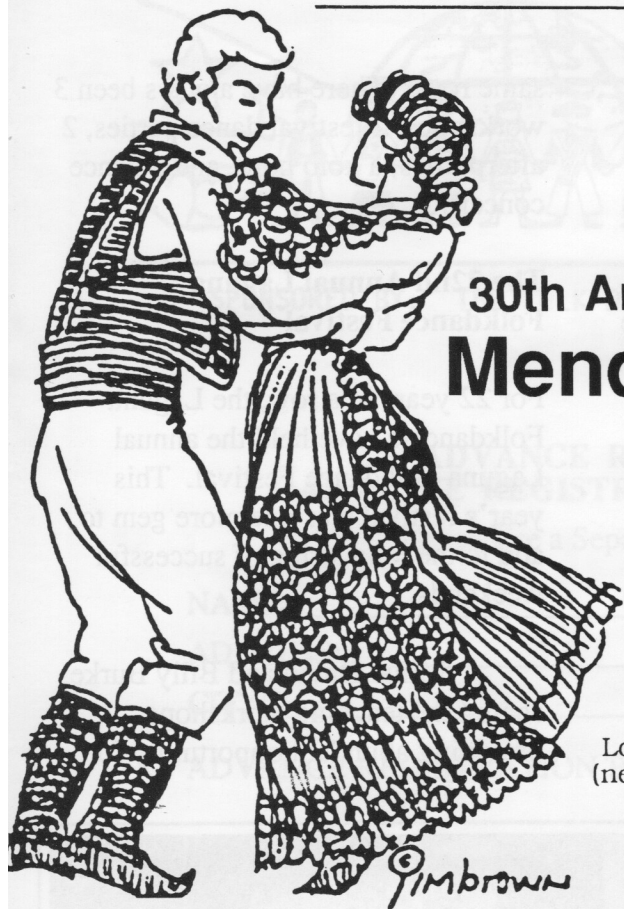

Tickets may be ordered by mail from the Music Center Box Office, 135 N. Grand Ave., L.A., 90012, or by phone from Ticketmaster, (213) 480-3293 or (714) 470-2000. Groups 20 or more are offered reduced rates by the sponsoring International Concerts Exchange, (213) 272-5539. For good seat locations, early reservations are recommended.

The 22nd Annual Laguna Folkdance Festival

Is the Laguna Folkdance Festival an endangered species? For the past several years, the cost of the facility alone has been over $2500. The school district business office has notified the group that the rates will increase by about 28% on July 1, 1992, raising the cost of the facility to $3200. For the past two years, attendance at the Laguna Folkdance Festival has declined. This has changed the Festival from a fund-raising activity which provided money for special workshops and equipment purchases to an event which can break even only with stringent cost control. In hard economic times, sometimes things of value are lost. The Laguna Folkdancers welcomes suggestions, ideas and critiques, sent to PO Box 845, Laguna Beach, CA 92652.

In Memory of MARTIN SANDELL

Martin Sandell, a dancer with the Pasadena Co-op, passed away on October 27, 1991. Martin began folk dancing in 1950 while an engineering student at CalTech. Soon after, Martin became a member of the Pasadena Co-op and met his wife, Lyvia, at a dance. Friday night became folk dance night for Martin. Whether in Schenectady, NY, with the Pomona Folkarteers or the Pasadena Co-op, Martin danced almost every Friday evening until he became ill in October. In his quiet way, he gave so much time and talent to the Co-op. Over the years, he was Ways and Means Chairman, served on the Nominating Committee annually and, in recent years, was our Membership Chairman. Martin's insistence held the Co-op together during a brief period when membership dropped and the possibility of disbanding the group seemed imminent. Martin's special love was Scandinavian dancing. He entered and won hambo contests and attended many camps to bring back German and Scandinavian dances to the Co-op. Martin's determination kept the Co-op tradition of beginning each night with the hambo. Martin took great care to make new dancers comfortable and his willingness to act as a teacher-partner to new dancers encouraged and, in fact, helped many of us to learn the hambo. All of us at the Co-op will sadly miss this gentle man and devoted Co-op dancer.

In Perspective

For a whole generation of folk dancers, the Laguna Festival has provided color, music, teaching, a chance to stretch minds and bodies with friends. Over the years, the Laguna Folkdance Festival has showcased some very special teachers with unique material, and some very special performers. Where else but Laguna could folk dancers be exposed to Lola Montez's exotically stylized Spanish dancing side by side with the earthy Bulgarian village dances taught and performed by Richard Unciano? Where else can one indulge in or sample at so many ethnic events, all housed under the same roof? There have always been 3 workshops, 2 festival dance parties, 2 afterparties, a kolo hour, and a dance concert.

The 22nd Annual Laguna Folkdance Festival

For 22 years in a row, the Laguna Folkdancers have held the annual Laguna Folkdance Festival. This year's festival was one more gem to add to the long string of successful weekends.

Mihai David and Billy Burke shared the teaching workshops, providing abundant opportunity for

of reintroducing his extraordinary talent to Southern California folk dancers. He has taught dances from his native Romania, many of which were learned when he was a member of the State Performing Ensemble. He presented material for all levels of dancers, from easy and fun to challenging and exciting. Billy Burke accepted the assignment on very short notice when the previously scheduled teacher was injured. Billy has been teaching folk dance at the 32nd Street USC Magnet School for the past 15 years. In addition, he has done field research in Croatia. By separating the material for each teaching session into Serbian on Friday, Macedonian on Saturday morning, and Croatian on Saturday afternoon, he was able to concentrate on styling differences, teaching "dancing" as well as individual dances.

The workshops are but one reason to attend the festival. Another, perhaps equally enticing, are the parties and afterparties, with ample opportunity to see old friends, talk with those rarely seen, mingle with teachers and performers, and make new friends. Not to mention the live music provided by Interfolk at Veselo Selo's Saturday night Valentine Dance Party, along with the creative dance program created by Jim Ulrich. For a more intimate atmosphere, the famous Laguna banners were lowered, enclosing a smaller area for the afterparty. That, plus some delectable goodies for for hungry dancers to snack on, and all-request dancing, and the "hidden" efforts of programmers (Steve Himmel and Ralph Bates on Friday night and Carol Maybrier and Pat Thomas on Saturday night), kept the afterparties going strong until 2 a.m. both nights!

The Sunday afternoon Dance Concert featured performances by local groups that have long been members of the "folk dance family" (Skandia, Dunaj and Polski Iskry) as well as several by faces new to the scene. Groups performing for the first time were: The Ionians, national sweepstakes winners in their church-sponsored dance competitions; Swing Shift, specializing in American dance from the 30's and 40's; and, Ballet Folklorico de UCI, doing dances of Mexico.

Presiding over all were the famous Laguna Folkdancer's banners, providing decoration and creating atmosphere for the entire festival. The banners are created by the Laguna Folkdance members and brought out each year for the festival. These, with the help of the decorating crew doing spectacular high wire acts on a cherry picker, and some plain and fancy footwork on the gym floor, convert the battered gym into a festive site in something less than 3 hours.

What does it take to carry on a tradition of this magnitude? A small group of energetic people - the Laguna Folkdancers Board of about 15 people - manages to pull it all together. The Festival weekend is the busiest time. People are needed to move banners and equipment, to meet with the school custodian, to decorate, and to set up equipment. People are also needed to take the teachers to dinner, to feed the decorating crew, and to be at the door to sell tickets and/or the syllabus. During workshops, people are needed to run the equipment and make announcements and to sit at the door. It is also helpful to have someone videotape the workshops. At afterparties, people are needed to provide and serve the food, program the music, and set up or change the decorations. On Sunday, people are needed to coordinate the space rehearsals, program the Kolo Hour, and announce the Concert. After the Concert, the Laguna Festival Dance begins and people are needed to act as M.C. At 5:30 p.m., the festival is over and the Undecorating Crew whips into action to take down and store the decorations.

It is at the concluding Wind-Down Dinner that the 15-20 very busy people kick back and begin the planning for the next festival.

Festival planning takes about a year, beginning around March with the vote to hold a festival and the appointment by the Board of a Festival Chairperson (if one can be found!). This marks the start of a new year of activity, with space reservations, teacher selection, schedule and price development getting done between March and May by the Festival Chairperson and the Board. Between June and December, the group coordinates publicity, performing group invitations, vendor invitations, and hospitality for teachers. The decision to make new banners or not is considered. In December and January, the group prepares the Syllabus, writes and tapes programs, makes tickets, and submits artwork for program and syllabus covers. And suddenly it's February again, and one of the most exciting weekends of the year is about to begin.
