LEE OTTERHOLT RECEIVES THE NATIONAL DANCE AWARD AT THE SAN ANTONIO FOLK FESTIVAL

Note from Lee

If you were at the Laguna Folk Dance Festival this year you heard me tell an embarrassing story about this award, given out each year at the San Antonio Folk Dance Festival. Well, I got it a little wrong then. The one who received the award that year was not Dick Crum. (He was there at the festival that year, but he had already won the award earlier.)

The one who was given the award that year was Mihai David. (Who, in another coincidence, happened to be in San Antonio again this year.)

Well, in an amazing coincidence, just 4 weeks after telling this embarrassing story at the Laguna Festival about NOT winning this award in 2004 ... I actually did receive the award this year!

Lee Otterholt

Info about Lee:

Lee's first experience of dance was when his mother put down her ironing when she heard a waltz on the radio and said to her then 7 year old son "Come on, Lee. I'll teach you the box step!"

Being raised in a Norwegian-American family he saw some Norwegian dancing as a child and while attending the University of Chicago did some Greek dancing, but did not really discover international folk dancing until he started dancing regularly in the Sala de Puerto Rico at MIT where he was doing graduate work. He was quickly picked up by the Mandala performing group and learned a lot of dances between midnight and 3 a.m. at raucous post-performance parties in tiny towns all over New England.

DANCING IN THE PARK

STATEWIDE 2015

The Statewide Festival this year is all about celebrations. This will be the 70th Statewide Festival since its inception in 1946, and it will be held at San Diego's Balboa Park which is marking its Centennial! We have not one, not two, but three celebrated teachers: Yves Moreau will teach Bulgarian dances, Richard Powers and his partner, Angela Amarillas, will teach vintage dances, and France Bourque-Moreau will have a special workshop for school teachers which we are all welcome to attend.

Because of Balboa Park's Centennial, the Balboa Park Club has had its floors completely refurbished and it is gorgeous and shiny and nice to dance on. The Balboa Park Club was the New Mexico Building during the 1915 Panama-California International Exposition, and built in the Pueblo-Revival style. The Santa Fe room where the Installation Luncheon and Past Presidents' reception will be held on Saturday is in the Santa Fe style - an Indian-Spanish-Mexican style, with half-timbered ceiling and an ornate balcony in the front. The foyer or "Interior Court" is a roofed-over inner patio - a request by the California Department of Education. It functioned as assembly and transit room, which has in the center a fountain called "The Four Cornerstones of American Democracy". The ballroom where we will dance has gone through many changes since it was built. During the World War I, it was used as officer's barracks, and during World War II, it was converted from a mess hall to a barroom for officers, and was called the Camp Kidd Officers' Club, where officers and their guests could dance, eat, drink, and be merry. We now just call it Balboa Park Club.

Back to Statewide... this year, because we have Chef Alex Molina, you never have to leave the park the entire day. Simply select your choices (for lunch and dinner on Saturday and lunch on Sunday) on the pre-registration form and you will enjoy lunch and dinner in the beautiful park where you can walk around and read plaques placed for the Centennial and learn about all the buildings! We urge you to select your meal choices in advance or you may have to leave your parking spot to go out in search of lunch or dinner! Because our festival starts early, you should not have trouble finding parking in the lots, but later in the day, the parking may fill up! You still have a few days before the deadline for pre-registration! You can just order t-shirts and meals if you cannot decide whether to save some money and pre-register for the festival!

Always check the website for new information!

DAYTIME FOLKDANCE CLASS

We are celebrating one year of dancing at Pan Pacific Senior Activity Center. We started March, 2014. It has been hard work as well as gratifying and fun. Many people come and go, and some stay. There is no charge for this class, as it is funded by Humana health insurance. We are grateful to them and hope to continue. We started out as beginners, and are now advanced beginners. Please spread the word, as we can use more people. For more information, call (310) 652-8706 or Pan Pacific Sr. Act. Ctr. at (323) 935-5705.

DANCERS SPEAK

MARGE @ LARGE

Café Aman has done it again! The Garlic Band led by Miamon Miller played for an enthusiastic group of Balkan dancers in March.

They played a variety of melodies from the Balkans and Eastern Europe. The Jewish set included Freilachs and a lively Hava Nagila. I was standing with some friends including Vicki Maheu (of San Diego) and remarked that we should have someone on a chair. Before I knew it, Vicki proceeded to grab a chair and wave it in the air, dancing around. Then, Jon Rand sat on the chair; two guys hefted him up and the dancing continued. At the end of the dance, Jon Rand graciously thanked everyone for coming to his party. Miamon says that The Garlic Band will appear again in concert in mid-June at the Coffee Gallery Backstage, Altadena.

Miamon and Marge

On to BalkanFest 2015. For the 5th time, Tony Shay (founder of Aman and Avaz) along with Ian Price and Mady Taylor (founders of Café Aman) organized BalkanFest at Pomona College in Claremont. Each year they have endeavored to bring name teachers and orchestras to this extraordinary event. This year was no exception. Tanya Kostova, originally from the Rhodopes in Bulgaria and now San Francisco, presented Bulgarian dances. Tanya's dance style is inimitable, and she is a delight to watch.

The second teacher was Tony Petroulis who taught Greek dances. Tony has a down-to-earth teaching style and was able to impart the feeling of Greek dance to the participants.

We had dinner at Frary Hall beneath the imposing mural of Prometheus by Mexican artist Jose Clemente Orozco.

During the "Pathways of Tradition" session, Tanya spoke about her love for the Rhodopes and how the current Bulgarian immigrants have come to be involved in Bulgarian folk dance. She encouraged everyone to come to San Francisco on May 23 and 24 for the Bulgarian Festival which she is organizing.

Tony is from Thebes but his family moved back and forth between Greece and the US. He spoke about his trips to Greece every year and his experiences with village culture. Tony is active in the Greek community in San Diego and is known to teach from time to time at the Folk Dance Center.

The evening dance featured two local Balkan bands. Rakia, led by Ty Rust, consists of only brass instruments, akin to the brass bands of Serbia. They played a lively set of traditional folk dances. I particularly liked one song in the Lesno suite – Oj Jano Jano. Veselba was the second band to play. They also played many favorites. Everyone loved to dance to the live music, and all had a good time.

Marge Gajicki

p.s. If you wish to see some more paintings by Orozco, Siqueros, Rivera, Kahlo, and other Mexican artists, MOLAA in Long Beach currently has a wonderful exhibit. It will be up until July 5. They offer Target Free Sundays with docent tours at 2 p.m.

Ed's Note: Marija Hillis, in charge of the Promotion Fund for FD Federation (North), has written an article about the fund. It was in the April 2015 edition of Let's Dance, and is re-printed here with permission. It is an interesting idea, and something we in the South might want to consider.

PROMOTING PROMOTION FUNDS

We all love to dance at festivals when there's a good crowd and we get to see many of our folk dance friends from other communities. We may not even know all their names, but their faces are familiar and the group still feels like family (in a good way!) Although dancing in our local, but usually smaller, dance groups is fun, a full dance hall brings with it a vitality that sparkles with the energy and joy of a healthy community.

So what does this have to do with the Promotion Fund? Promoting folk dancing to bring new dancers to this joyful activity is crucial to a vibrant and viable folk dance community in the future.

Of course, the Folk Dance Federation already sponsors New Dancer events which are popular and helpful in offering people a taste of our fun through learning beginner dances in a festival atmosphere. These occasional but on-going events require much planning and preparation and are separately funded. The Promotion funds are intended to support individual member's ideas for spreading the good word.

The Promotion Fund Committee was established by the Federation based on a $50,000 bequest from Kenyon Rayner in 2003. Bill Lidicker was its first chair. In the early years, the Promotion Fund supported the Kolo Festival by lending tide-over funds to pay for a popular teacher (the funds were eventually repaid); granted an award for ad translation and advertising in a foreign-language newspaper in a specific cultural community; paid for purchase of equipment for a project to make videos of folk dances; and funded an advertising campaign in a group's local newspaper. Recently, a dance group used funds for outreach to local high schools and colleges through ads in student newspapers; and a folk festival committee was granted funds for reduced entrance fees for younger dancers.

As you can see, there are various ways the Promotion Fund has been used to support and implement promotional ideas. Your idea does not have to be a completely original one. For example, advertising is a good category to consider. Can you think of groups or communities in your area that may be interested in folk dancing? Or, you may have an idea that you've put aside because you were not prepared to assume the financial responsibility to actualize it. Please consider thinking BIG and apply for the support of the Promotion Fund, which is available to fund your great idea for sharing your love of folk dancing with others who haven't yet discovered it.

Check out the guidelines for applying for Promotion funds on the Federation website, or contact me at marijahillis@gmail.com. I'd love to hear from you!

SACRAMENTO NEWS

March was an exciting month with Camellia Festival activities. We learned from and danced with Steve Kotansky and Bruce Hamilton. What fun and great dances taught.

The concert at Sac City was wonderful to see with great variety of entertaining dances and lovely music. If you missed it, hopefully you will make it next year.

In the meantime there is plenty of dancing going on in the Sacramento area and beyond. Get there and take advantage of it.

RALPH KUTTNER - 1927-2015

Website master for Veselo Selo, Ralph Kuttner "took off for the skies" on March 16, 2015 after a long battle with leukemia. For awhile, Ralph also served as webmaster with the SoCal Folk Dance Federation. An active member of Veselo Selo, Ralph issued bulletins, input folk music every Saturday and served as programmer intermittently.

He is survived by his wife Betz, two married sons, five grandchildren, and two great grandchildren.

His Rite of Earthlife Closure was celebrated at the UUC on March 25.

Poetry Corner

PEACE

Finding peace
in sunrise runs on switchback trails,
in the gentle glide of Jabado,
in silent, contemplative prayer.

And then, I chanced upon a painting:
virtually violent with color:
reds splashing through greens,
purples propelled across yellows,
tangerines tingling with intensity...
and at the vortex, a single word: PEACE.
Peace in the midst of chaos???

Long I pondered this perplexity.
And then... Yes!!!
Peace is that cruse of soothing oil
found in the hills, the dance, the prayer,
held gently in two careful hands

And carried into chaos as
the kind word,
the listening ear,
the tone of forgiveness,
the encouraging comment...
amidst the Sturm und Drang.

Camille Dull

LIMERICK

Biserka's the dance that I sought;
Bojarka's the dance that I got.
Still, it tickled my ribs,
For they're very close sibs.
Yes, I liked what I got a whole lot.

Carl Pilsecker

Ed's Note: Last month Carl wrote another of his clever limericks in which we inadvertently omitted the final sentence. Apologies to Carl, and here is the complete version:

Mom said I was a dancin' fool,
And so she sent me to dancing school,
Where I wrote a brief essay
About Kirco Sedese*;
Earned my degree by strutting Rustemul.

*Ok. Ok. I know it's Kirco Na Cardak Sedese - but that doesn't fit.

When he moved to Norway to do research on his PhD he missed the camaraderie of the folk dance community so he started both a recreational folk dance group and a performing group in Oslo. After his one-year scholarship ran out, he wanted to stay, and the one year turned into 27 years. While in Norway he founded 3 international folk dance groups, founded and led 2 different performing groups, established and led the Center for International Folk Dance in Oslo, studied choreography at the Norwegian National College of Ballet and later taught both there and at the Norwegian National Theater College, the Norwegian National Music College, at the University College of Oslo and at a high school for the arts. He choreographed for both the professional theater in Norway and for the Norwegian National Broadcasting System. His largest choreographic assignment was as one of the choreographers of the Opening and Closing Ceremonies of the Winter Olympics held in Lillehammer Norway in 1994.

In 2003 he "retired himself" and moved to Laguna Beach, California, intending to surf the waves of the Pacific Ocean every day, but instead invitations came to teach at workshops, camps and festivals all over the United States and to lead folk dance tours all over the world.

He says that "Dancing has given me a life of incredible variety. It has taken me all over the world and introduced me to people and places I never dreamed I would experience. Dance has, simply, been my life, and it has been a good life, full of incredible people, experiences and adventures!"
