German LAUTERBACHER (HAMLINER WALTZER)

Many of us are familiar with the Swiss Lauterbacher which was introduced to us by the Witschis. This is why this lovely tune will ring a bell for the old-timers among us. However, this simple mixer is popular all over Germany -- in the North being known as the Hamliner Waltzer.

RECORD: TANZ EP 58 607

FORMATION: Partners with hands joined in a large circle.

ACTION:

Meas. 1-4 As the men stay in place, the girls, starting with L foot, take 4 waltz two-steps toward center of circle.

Meas. 5-8 Linking elbows, the girls balance first to the left - then right, left and right. (This is sometimes done without linking elbows)

Meas. 9-12 Men follow their partners into the center with 4 waltz two-steps, and take hold of them by the waists or around bands. (L foot beginning). (boy's fingers in girls' apron belt)

Meas. 13-16 Both dance backwards to place with 4 waltz two-steps.

Meas. 17-24 Men turn out away from partners and with 8 waltz two-steps - move along the outside of the circle in dance direction, coming around to the right of the third girl, counting their own partners, turn to face her and honor her.

Meas. 25-26 Joining inside hands, new partners swing arms forward taking one sliding step forward on outside foot, closing other, then repeating in opposite direction on other foot, swinging army backward.

Meas. 27-28 The men start partners turning (once around with two waltz steps) clockwise on to the next man as they do a sliding step-together forward and back in place.

Meas. 29-40 Repeat the swinging and turning three more times.

Meas. 41-60 Waltz with new partner in dance direction, always continuing in one big circle. On measure 60 join hands in circle to begin again.
